Current human service policies are moving increasingly toward support of self-determination and choice for all individuals. How do we provide choice and determination for those with limited communication, experiences, practice and opportunities? This is our charge in relation to the HCBS Rule. We must now provide the experiences, opportunities and communication supports and alternatives to meet the rule, and more importantly, in so doing enrich the lives of those we live with, care for, and serve. The good news... we CAN do this!!
